COMMENCEMENT WEEK AT GOULD'S ACADEMY

Principal Frank E. Hanscom Presented with Loving Cup by Students of the School, 1897-1922

Commencement week at Gould's Academy is always anticipated with pleasure, but never in the history of the school has it been hailed with the deep and wide-spread interest and enthusiasm which has permeated the atmosphere of the past few weeks.

The marvelous changes which have taken place during the past year aroused the curiosity and interest of more than the usual number of alumni and friends, who came to view in reality the scenes which they had tried to visualize in a mind picture. That they were not disappointed was evidenced by the many expressions of surprise and admiration heard, as people wandered about the campus. The majority of the friends present saw for the first time the new Gould's Academy, for it does seem new indeed with its beautiful colonial entrance and gilded dome. The complete renovation which has taken place in the interior of the building, ordered by Rev. T. C. Chapman of Norway, a former pastor of the Methodist church approval, while the Household Arts in Bethel, the Manual Training Shop and last, but farthest from the least, the William Bingham Gymnasium elicited demands the best of service and loyalty so the world is calling for these same qualities in the young men and women who are to enter upon life's duties. The speaker's words could not fail to arouse in the young people a deep sense of their responsibilities.

GRADUATION EXERCISES

Thursday dawned bright and fair and long before ten o'clock, the hour set for the graduation exercises, friends of the school began to assemble in the William Bingham Gymnasium, where fully 750 people enjoyed the program. Never will this beautiful new building present a more attractive appearance than it has during the commencement festivities of this year. The entire wall at the rear of the stage was banked in evergreen, while against this, in bold silver characters, G. A. 1922 stood out er members of The Twentieth Century Club of Gould's Academy, a club founded by Mrs. J. G. Gehring which has for its aim the social betterment of the school. A novel feature of the Address to Undergraduates was the transferring of the Club banner to the Junior Class.

Expressions of regret at the absence of Mr. Bingham and Dr. and Mrs. Gehring, through whose influence has come so much of Gould's prosperity, were heard in the program.

The Class Gift to the School, was a fine reproduction of "The Horse Fair" by Rosa Bonheur. Mr. E. C. Park, in accepting the gift in behalf of the trustees, made a comparison of the life and action depicted in the picture to that which the members of the class had been watching in the growth of the institution which was sending them forth. He appealed to them to give of their best in the battle of life which commands alert and active minds and bodies.

People have come to wonder from year to year what vital message Principal Hanscom will bring to the class in his conferring of the diplomas, but no one is ever disappointed and his earnest words of counsel spoken to the class of 1922, if needed, cannot fail to win success for its members.

ALUMNI LUNCHEON

Immediately following the Commencement Exercises the alumni gathered at the Academy, where, after a short period for greetings, the lines were formed and the faculty, alumni and friends marched to Odeon Hall where the alumni luncheon was served under the direction of Mrs. Cilley. Too much credit cannot be given to the Executive Committee of the Alumni Association for the able manner in which the preparations were made. To speak of Mrs. Cilley's efficiency is only to repeat the sentiment of all who know the reputation of Bethel Inn. The same gracious spirit which permeates the atmosphere of the Inn was felt by all as Mrs. Cilley went about looking after the comfort and pleasure of her guests. The Alumni Association is deeply grateful to Mrs. Cilley for serving the luncheon under conditions which meant a great inconvenience.

After all had satisfied the desires of the inner man, Mr. Leslie Mason of South Paris, President of the Association, conducted a short business meeting and then called upon Principal Frank E. Hanscom, whose remarks are always eagerly awaited. He spoke briefly and modestly of the changes which have taken place during the twenty-five years he has been connected with the school, paying fitting tributes to the townspeople, the trustees, the teachers and students who have cooperated with him in his endeavor to build up the school. The tone of sincerity with which he so feelingly voiced his affection for the boys and girls with whom he had been associated—from the little group of twenty-five which faced him in the fall of 1897 to the present student body of 135—met a responsive chord in the heart of every person present, but to those who have been his students his words were precious indeed.

Among those present was Mr. Gerry L. Brooks who was the only pupil graduated in the class of '98, which was the first class to be graduated under Principal Hanscom. At the deafening applause and cheers, which followed Professor Hanscom's remarks, ceased, Mr. Brooks, who is now a lawyer in Portland, spoke of the wonderful growth of the school since he left it twenty-four years ago and paid a personal tribute to Principal Hanscom, and emphasized the wonderful influence which he had exerted in the lives of the men and women who have gone out from Gould's Academy in the last quarter of a century. At the close of his most fitting remarks he presented Mr. Hanscom with a beautiful loving cup containing a substantial sum in gold coins and bearing the following inscription:

Presented to
PRINCIPAL FRANK E. HANSOM
In loving remembrance
by
Students of Gould's Academy
1897-1922

Accompanying the gift was a book containing the names of more than 400 people scattered from Maine to California, and some beyond the borders of our country, who had shared in this token of esteem. The gift was a complete surprise to Principal Hanscom and his family. So deeply touched was he at this manifestation of love and esteem that it was with difficulty he began his response, but he quickly recovered himself and the words, which he so feelingly uttered in his appreciation for the gift and the sentiment which prompted it, will long be cherished by his "boys and girls" who were privileged to hear them. Would that all who shared in the remembrance might have witnessed its presentation.

A pleasing incident of the afternoon was the reading by Mr. F. H. Merrill of a short letter conveying congratulations to Mr. Hanscom and hearty greetings to the alumni and friends from Dr. and Mrs. Gehring and Mr. Bingham.

The committee is to be congratulated for having obtained as the speaker of the afternoon Mr. Donald Partridge of South Paris, Clerk of Courts for Oxford County.

ford County. Mr. Partridge is one of the most promising young orators in the State. His winning personality, his clear voice with its perfect enunciation, and his ready wit make him an ideal after dinner speaker. His short but impressive address was a strong appeal for education. He said, in brief, that the solution of the problems facing the world depends upon the young men and women who are going out from our educational institutions, which stand for those qualities embodied and symbolized in the American flag.

After Mr. Partridge's address, with Mrs. W. B. Twaddle at the piano all joined in singing some of the Gould's songs, and thus ended one of the most successful banquets ever held by the Gould's Alumni.

The officers elected for the coming year are as follows:

President—Gerry Brooks,
Vice-President—Earl Philbrook.
Secretary—Carrie Wight.
Treasurer—Mrs. O. M. Mason.

Executive Committee—Agnes Twaddle, Fred Hall, Robert Hastings, Muriel Hall, Chester Howe, Alice Mason, Ernest Walker.

BASE BALL GAME

The annual game of baseball between Gould's and its alumni was played on the athletic field in the afternoon resulting in a score of 14 to 4 in favor of the alumni.

RECEPTION

Thursday evening the William Bingham Gymnasium was the scene of the last, but perhaps the most delightful, of the week's festivities, when the graduating class gave a reception to its friends.

The spacious hall serves as an ideal place for dancing while the balcony gives the lookers on an opportunity to observe without annoyance to themselves or to the dancers. The gymnasium presented a very festive appearance, practically the same decorations being used as in the morning, supplemented with the dainty and varied shades of pretty gowns. The class was assisted in receiving by Mrs. O. M. Mason, Professor and Mrs. Hanscom and Miss Ella Litchfield, Preceptress at Gould's, who stood on the right side of the hall as the guests entered, while the class stood in front of the stage. Dancing was enjoyed till eleven o'clock when the good-nights were said and the events of the week, wholly successful, were brought to a close.

Thus Gould's Academy has sent out twenty-one more young people to take their places with the hundreds of others who have gone out from her doors to share the burdens and responsibilities of the world. Several members of the class will continue their preparation in higher institutions of learning.

Three Reasons Why

When you figure on shingling a new roof or re-shingling an old one, remember these three facts regarding Rubberoid Strip-shingles.

Nine styles—three colors. Rubberoid Strip-shingles provide an unusually distinctive roof. Their patented form enables you to choose your roof from nine attractive styles. The natural slate-surfacing (red or green) on one face and a substantial grey weather-coating on the other, makes it possible for you to carry out any particular style in either solid colors or in attractive blends of sage green, Indian red, or steel grey—depending upon your fancy.

Less expensive to lay. Rubberoid Strip-shingles save labor and expense when it comes to laying. With every strip, four shingles are fastened in place. No chalk lines are necessary, because the shingles are self-spacing.

No expense for shingles. Rubberoid Strip-shingles are built according to the well-known Rubberoid standard of quality through and through. They are unusually thick and rigid. They will not curl or warp. Surface and back coatings, saturant and felt, are the best that can be made.

Phone us today for samples and a folder which illustrates in colors the nine different styles which may be obtained.

CANTON

Canton friends were saddened and shocked on learning of the death of Mrs. Jennie F. Read of Harry R. Read of Portland, which occurred Tuesday, June 6, at the Gordon Hospital, Portland, where she had been since May 14 for treatment. The cause of her death was sleeping sickness. Mrs. Read was born in Canton fifty-three years ago this month and spent her young girlhood here. She was the youngest daughter of Stephen French and Mary E. (Briggs) French, life-long residents of Canton. She was twice married, her first husband being Nathaniel G. Hollis of Canton who passed away a few years later. After the death of her husband she resided in Portland and Old Orchard for many years. When the death of her father occurred a few years ago she came to Canton to reside with her mother. A year ago she married Harry Ralston Read, also a native of Canton and they went to Portland to make their home, where they had recently purchased a pretty residence. Mrs. French closed her home in Canton and lived with her daughter in Portland. Besides her husband and mother, she is survived by a sister, Mrs. Alice F. Walker of New York City, a nephew, Harold Walker of Bath, and a grand-niece, Miss Alice Walker of Woolwich, also several cousins. She was a member of Old Orchard Rebekah Lodge, No. 112, and was one of the first members of Penobscot Rebekah Lodge of Canton. Mrs. Read possessed a pleasing person, was genial and kind-hearted and won many friends who regret her departure. Services were held at her home Wednesday afternoon for the Portland and Old Orchard friends, and the body brought to Canton, Thursday morning, where the funeral was held at the United Baptist church, Rev. Frank M. Lamb officiating. An appropriate vocal solo was rendered by Mr. Lamb. The floral offerings were unusually lovely and in great abundance, bearing mute testimony of the love in which she was held. The bearers were William A. Lucas, Edwin K. Hollis, George H. Johnson and A. Stanwood Bicknell. The interment was at Pine Woods cemetery. The funeral services which were held on the first wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Read were attended by many Canton friends. Among those from out of town were Harry R. Read of Portland, Mrs. Alice F. Walker of New York, Harold Walker of Bath, Mrs. Esther R. Read of Livermore Falls, Mrs. Edwin Thompson of Auburn, Mrs. Katie Stevens and son, Thomas Stevens of Mexico, Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Carron and Mrs. Mildred W. Hinlon of Rumford, and Mrs. Henry R. Robinson and son, Clarence Robinson, of Peru.

The marriage of Herman Addison Tirrell of Canton and Miss Hazel Bello Knight of Garland was solemnized Wednesday, June 7, at the home of the bride in Garland. Mr. Tirrell is the son of H. T. Tirrell of Canton and the late Susan (Hayford) Tirrell. He received his education in the Canton schools and for the past few years has worked at the trade of carpenter.

The juniors of the high school presented the drama, "Six Gleamomaniacs," Tuesday evening to a good sized audience. A dance followed and the affair was successful. A good sum was realized.

Miss Ruth Richardson, Mrs. Elmer R. Lane and Mrs. H. F. Richardson attended the funeral of Mrs. Frances (Irish) Kirschbaum at Turner, Wednesday.

The graduation of the eighth grade, Canton grammar school, was held Thursday evening, with a large attendance. The stage was decorated in the class colors, gold and white, and the front of the stage was a bank of greenery and flowers. The class motto was "Forward." The class numbered thirteen, one of whom, Miss Evelyn Walker, was unable to be present on account of illness. The members marched into the hall, marshaled by Roy Dymont, and took seats on the stage. Essay—Valedictory, Dorothy Morse

At the close of the program the teacher, Miss Mary E. McDowell was presented with a gold bracelet from her pupils, the presentation speech being made by Supt. Francis H. Bates, Miss McDowell responding with thanks. Next came the presentation of certificates by the Superintendent and the class ode and reception. A merry social followed the exercises.

The graduation exercises of Canton high school occurred Friday evening.

NEWRY

Everyone was rejoiced last Saturday to see the rain as it was badly needed. Dame Harlow of Buckfield visited his nephew, H. E. Harlow, and wife last week. It has been a number of years since Mr. Harlow was in town before. He was looking for a good farm with the intention of buying. Harry Isaacson of Norway was in town last week with a good assortment of goods. Miss Emily Bunker of North Norway spent the week end at H. E. Bartlett's. The boys and girls of Gould's Academy are at home for the summer vacation.

IF MOTHERS ONLY KNEW

Thousands of Children Suffer From Worms and Their Mothers Do Not Know What the Trouble Is

Signs of Worms are: Constipation, deranged stomach, swollen upper lip, offensive breath, hard and full stomach, dry cough, pale face, eyes heavy, short red points on the tongue, starting during sleep, slow fever.

Mr. H. N. Roberts, 502 Asylum St., Flint, Mich., writes to Dr. J. E. True & Co.: "My little girl is relieved of her worms." And in a later letter wrote: "Baby is fine and it was our medicine, Dr. True's Elixir, the True Family Laxative and Worm Expeller, that helped her."

THE J. E. JONES LETTER

LABOR UNIONS ARE AN INSTITUTION

A feature of the growth of our large industrial institutions has been the melting together of labor groups into unions. The old policy of "iring" a man has passed, and today millions of American workers carry on their negotiations with their employers through their leaders, thus giving them representation in groups. During the war the Government gave full recognition to labor unions; and in the handling of the affairs of railroad operators the railroad owners and the Government have dealt with the unions, or "brotherhoods," as they are called. All will admit that the system is proving satisfactory.

A decision by the United States Supreme Court holds that labor unions are an institution. Originally the unions were a sort of society or a band of workmen grouped together for a common purpose. But if this was once the case, it is no longer so. In deciding the celebrated Coronado coal case the Supreme Court held that labor organizations, although unincorporated, are amenable to the Sherman anti-trust act, and that under it such organizations may be prosecuted for restraint of interstate commerce. The Court also held that labor unions are stable. Chief Justice Taft announced the decision for the full Bench, and there was no dissent.

THE PRICE OF GASOLINE

"Gas" sold for practically half the price six or eight years ago that it brings today. There is an old joke that gas goes up a cent, a gallon every time the Rockefeller family announces another benefit. According to that the Rockefellers must have been very generous in giving away their money during recent years, because in places where gas sold for from 12 to 16 cents before the war the price is now around 28 cents.

There is such a strong suspicion that there is profiteering in gasoline that the United States is going to investigate the situation. Reports from the Geological Survey show that the stocks of gasoline on hand have been large and that the production has been amply sufficient. During the war the stocks were constantly depleted and the production was insufficient to meet the demands. At one time the users of fuel oil had a hard time to get their supplies. The results were particularly disastrous to the manufacturers of illuminating gas.

While this condition existed the prices kept going up gradually until a figure but a little above the customary price of today was reached. But there has been but little price reduction; and in consequence the Senate is turning loose the anti-trust cyclone, Senator LaFollette, as its chief investigator.

PLENTY OF GAS

The daily average consumption of gas in the United States in 1921 was 12,612,338 gallons. The average production for the same period was 14,119,313 gallons. For the first quarter of 1922 the daily average consumption dropped to 10,389,441, but this falling off is explained by the fact that the demand for gas is somewhat seasonal, the winter months being light. However, the production did not lessen, and the figures show that there was an excess of production over consumption for the same period, amounting to nearly 3,000,000 gallons a day. The Bureau of Mines also keeps statistics about gasoline, and their figures show that on March 1, the stock on hand in the United States was 234,000,000 gallons, which was a greater supply than ever before in the history of the industry.

The Senate Manufacturers Committee has these figures, and they have been discussed somewhat in the Senate. The Committee will seek an explanation from oil producers and dealers for the continued high price of gasoline, and they will inquire into the possibilities of a collusion and conspiracy having been effected that has resulted in boosting the price of gasoline, and keeping up the price. According to the best information that is given out through the Government agencies an increase of a cent a gallon on the price of gasoline means a tax of $60,000,000 a year upon the American people.

THE PRESIDENT AND CONGRESS

President Harding and his political party are agreed in wanting a new tariff law. The Senate is laboring hard with the measure. When the Senate finishes the bill it will still have the House to "finish," and that is likely to prove to be a job in view of the fact that the Senate has amended the bill as it came from the House 2,000 times. The Republican Congress will not dare to adjourn until the tariff bill is completed. When that will be no one seems to know. But it may be put down as definite that the new Republican tariff will be in effect before the Fall political campaign, because the party in power could not advantageously go before the voters without having enacted a tariff measure out to the established designs of the G. O. P.

But when it comes to the soldiers' bonus and the ship subsidy measures—aye, that is a horse of a different color.

Congress wants the soldiers' bonus and has cold feet on the ship subsidy.

The President wants the ship subsidy and he does not want the soldiers' bonus.

Mr. Harding has so far refrained from dictating to Congress. If he had the temperament of Roosevelt or Wilson he would exercise his power and tell Congress that it must drop the bonus bill.

There would be a lot of growling and remonstrance but in the end the leaders on Capitol Hill would quite naturally yield to the Executive.

A more significant program is hatching. A good many of the astute politicians purport to see in the Administration's insistence for the passage of the ship subsidy bill a very clever move that will eventually bring the President and Congress that it has not enough money in both measures.

The President has been telling Congress that it has not enough money to spend for the soldiers' bonus. Congress informs the President that there isn't sufficient money for the ship subsidy bill. Everybody knows that one or both will mean higher taxes. And so in the long run the Administration will likely compromise with Congress

by "bravely" meeting the situation.

All this will appear in next year's tax bill, but there will be no evidence of it to disturb the hilarity of a jubilant fall campaign.

In this manner the Republican program is very apt to be completed during the present Summer.

FIDDLING WITH FORD

Anyone who has followed the upbuilding of the war plants at Muscle Shoals knows that the completion and operation of these projects promises a real industrial rejuvenation for the South. There seems to be no question in the mind of anybody about the desirability of the Government finishing the project.

But instead of going ahead and doing it Congress plays with the political situation that has developed by reason of the Ford offer.

In the meantime nothing is being done to place Muscle Shoals in condition so that the Government or anybody else, can make it an asset to the South.

Mr. Ford's offer provides that the Government shall complete the Wilson Dam and the rest of the plant, and his injecting himself into the proposition has had no real effect upon the situation except to tie up the work and prevent Congress from going ahead with the completion of this most important industrial enterprise.

THE ECONOMIC CONTEST

The railroads uttered a piercing yell of protest when huge reductions in freight rates were recently ordered. There followed a reduction in wages of thousands of railroad employees—and there was immediately another yell accompanied by threats of a strike. Then ensued quiet. The whole transaction is another chapter in the economic contest that is designed to lower all values. The same method that shows up so conspicuously in the railroad situation is operating in every other phase of economic life. By its progress we trace the reason for cheaper clothing, cheaper food, and reduction in most of our expenses. It is the process which President Harding refers to as "normal."

The W. G. T. U. held a very interesting meeting Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Frank Kendall. After adjournment Mrs. Kendall served dainty refreshments and all were delightfully entertained.

Mr. Stephen E. Abbott, Maplehurst, Route 1, of Bethel has purchased from Ayredale Stock Farm, Bangor, Me., a pure bred Jersey bull sired by Sophie's Captain Pegeen 178662, the sire of the bull is Tormentor's Golden Pawn who is on Register of Merit test at Ayredale with first calf and in 144 days has made 201.55 lbs. fat. Her sire is a silver medal bull. Mr. Abbott is certainly on the right track when he buys a bull like the above, for in any herd the herd sire is two-thirds of the herd. If more of the breeders of Maine would see fit to buy such animals as Mr. Abbott, the State of Maine would be put on the map. Mr. G. B. Bryant of Lewisburg, Tennessee has just purchased from the Ayredale a few young bulls to take to Tennessee, the heart of the Jersey world, to sell them from there. When a man comes from Tennessee, where there are as many Jerseys in that state, way up to the little state of Maine, to buy bulls, when the Maine farmers pass the animals by, it certainly is pleasing to find a Maine farmer who appreciates the value of good stock.

Two
Paint Facts
That You Should Know

WHEN you dip a brush into the average paint and spread it on a surface, you find it takes a lot of brushing to make it cover evenly. Also, that no matter how careful you are, it still shows the brush marks, or little ridges.

Between every one of those ridges is a thin streak. Therefore, the paint film is only as strong as those thin streaks.

Now, dip your brush into a can of Lowe Brothers High Standard Paint and spread it on the surface. You will be delighted to see how thoroughly it covers. Further, it will level up and dry with a smooth surface, without any ridges or thin streaks.

Doing that, you can easily see why High Standard costs less per job. It cuts down the cost of painting. And because it forms a uniformly thick film, it lasts longer, and looks better as long as it lasts.

Come in and ask for details and literature.

WEST BETHEL CHURCH
W. O. Thomas, Minister

Being an American does not depend on a mere accident of birth. It depends on moles and thoughts of life in the light of a great ideal. In order to be truly American we must know what we are trying to be. On Sunday, June 18, there will be begun a series of sermons on "The American Ideals of the First Patriots As We Find Them In Declaration of Independence." The subjects will be as follows:

June 17, "The Equality of Men."
June 24, "Life."
July 1, "Liberty."
July 8, "The Pursuit of Happiness."

July 16, "The Supreme Judge."

The men who wrote our Declaration of Independence had a wonderful vision.
Have we lost it? If we have, we are no more American than the most benighted hooligan in Africa who never heard that there even was such a country.

Let us all go to church Sunday.
Morning worship at 10:30.
Sunday School at 11:30.
Evening devotions at 7:30. Subject,
"Jesus' Idea of a Lost Man."

A UNIQUE RECORD

Home testimony for Dean's Kidney Pills, published in every locality, is of itself convincing evidence of merit.
Confirmed testimony forms still stronger evidence. Years ago, a citizen of Bethel gratefully acknowledged the benefit derived from Dean's Kidney Pills. The statement is now confirmed —the proof more convincing. Cases of this kind are plentiful in the work of Dean's Kidney Pills—the record is unique.

Mrs. Walter E. Bartlett, Chapman St., says: "I used Dean's Kidney Pills
some time ago and the results I received were, in every way, satisfactory and were evidence of the merit of this remedy. I have felt no recurrence of the complaint and naturally I place no little confidence in Dean's Kidney Pill."
(Statement given June 12, 1916.)

On September 9, 1920, Mrs. Bartlett added: "Dean's Kidney Pills cured me of kidney trouble several years ago and that cure has been permanent. All I said in my former statement holds good today."

"Father," Nina said, when they three were alone together, "did Royal Blodin take a check from you ten days ago?"

Richard, taken unaware, glanced sharply at Harriet, who shook her head with an anxious look. He sat down beside Nina on the bed, and put a fatherly arm about her.

"Ah, Father, don't put me off!" the girl begged. "I wrote him, after my birthday," she said, "and told him that money made no difference to me. He didn't answer. Then I got Bruce Hopper to ask his mother to have Blodin meet her at the club for tea, and I saw him then. Bruce," Nina cast in, still in the new, self-contained tone, "has been wonderful about it! I know he only seems a silent sort of boy, but I'll never forget what he's done for me! Royal," she resumed, "didn't want to see me, and said he had promised Father that it was over. He—but I needn't tell you all he said. It sounded—"

Nina clung to her father's hands, and shut her eyes. "It sounded so—so false!" she whispered, bitterly. "So I went to his studio today!" she presently continued. "And—there were two or three women there, but it wasn't that. They were—well, perhaps they were just having fun. But—"

And Nina looked pitiably from Harriet's sympathetic face to her father's troubled eyes. "But I've not been having much fun!" she faltered, with a suddenly trembling mouth.

"I've been planning—praying—that somehow it would come out right. He told me today that he had promised not to see or speak to me for two years," she said, slowly. "I—Father, I knew that he had a reason! He was changed. I never saw him so! And two hours ago," she pointed to the door that led into her father's room, "two hours ago I went in there," she said, "and I looked over your own check book. Father, did you write him a check? Was that the stub that had 'R. B.' on it?"

Richard looked at her sorrowfully.

"I'm sorry, Nina," he said, simply. "I told him you should not know, from me! I would have spared you that."

For a few minutes there was silence in the room. Then Nina said bravely, through tears:

"I don't know why you should be sorry for what will save me months of slow worry, all at one blow! You and Harriet needn't worry any more. I'm cured. I've been a fool, let him flatter me and lie to me," said this new Nina, with bitter courage, "but I'm over it now. I'm sorry I gave you much trouble, Father!"

"My darling girl," her father said, tenderly. "I only wish I could spare you all this!"

"Better now than two or three years after we were married," Nina said. "Plenty of girls find it out then! Father, I want you to get that check, through the clearing-house, for me," she said, heroically, "and I want to keep it. If ever I'm a fool about a man again, I'll take it out and look at it!"

"I have it; I told Fox to get it today," Richard said. "You shall have it!"

Nina had turned suddenly white; it was as if a last little hope had been killed.

"You have it!" she whispered. "He cashed it, then!"

"He cashed it the next morning," Richard said. Nina was silent for a moment.

"How you must laugh at me, Harriet!" she said then.

"I? Laugh at you!" Harriet said, stricken. "My darling girl, I am the last woman in the world who could do that! I was only your age, Nina, when I met him—know that story, Why, Nina, you're but eighteen, after all; you have many and many an affair before the right man comes along," Harriet said. "You'll look back on this some day, and say, 'It was an experience, and I learned from it! It is only going to make me happier and more sure when the man whom I really love comes to me!'"

Nina, sitting between Richard and Harriet on the bed, looked wistfully from one face to another.

"I'll try to make it so, Harriet!" she said. And somewhat timidly she added, "either—and Harriet—shall you feel freer if I say that I don't want to go to Brazil? I'll tell you why. Ward is going out to the Gardiner ranch, and Bruce is going, too, and it seems to me that riding and camping and living in the open air will be well, will seem better to me than just being on the steamer! I dread seeing strange places and meeting people," said Nina. "The Gardiner girls were simply darling to me the term they were in school, and—don't you remember, Harriet?—we were the only people who took them out for Christmas and Easter holidays, and they like me! And—if you wouldn't be too disappointed, Harriet, I believe I would like it better!"

"Six darling girls," Harriet said.

warmly, "you must do what seems right to you. But you won't need me," she added, tactfully.

"Well, you see Mrs. Gardiner and Mrs. Hopper are sisters," Nina explained, readily, "and they'll be with us. But if you'd like to come—we are going camping in the most glorious canyon that you ever saw!" Nina interrupted herself with sudden enthusiasm. "And I am so glad I really can ride! I'd feel so horrible if I couldn't!"

"I think you'll have a wonderful two months of it," Harriet said, "and then Grannys'll be coming West, to spend the winter in Santa Barbara, too! And now, Nina, love, it's after eleven o'clock," she ended with a change of tone, "and you have had a terrible kiss at the door of her room, "when ever you feel sad and depressed about it, just remember to say to yourself, 'This won't last! In a few months the stings will all be gone!'"

"Nina is in safe hands!" Richard said to himself, thankfully, as he closed the door. He carried a memory of Harriet's earnest eyes, her low, energetic voice, her encouraging arm about Nina's shoulders.

They were all at breakfast when he came down the next morning. His mother, in one of her lacy, flowing robes she always wore before noon, laid down a letter half-read, to smile at him. Ward, his dark head very sleek above his informal summer costume, was deep in talk with Bruce Hopper, who had evidently ridden over from the country club, and was in a well-fitting, shabby Jersey that became his somewhat lanky frame. Nina, somewhat silent, but interested in everything, wore an expression of quiet self-possession that her father found touching. Nina was growing up, he thought.

Completing the group, and officiating at the foot of the table, was the radiant Harriet. She looked as fresh as one of the creamy rosebuds that were mussed in the dull blue bowl before her, her shining hair framing the dusky forehead like dull gold wings, the frail sleeves of her blue gown falling back from her rounded arms.

"You're late, my son," said Madame Carter, as he kissed her temple.

"Never mind," Harriet said serenely, "We just this instant come, and he saves my face!" Do turn that toast, Ward!" she added. And to the maid, "So you abandon me on the Brazil trip?" he asked, watching her seriously.

"Well?" Harriet shrugged. "I thought you had to go," she added. "I'm—I confess I'm disappointed. But to have Nina want to do anything is such a relief to me that I'm only going to think of that!"

"Yes, I have to go," Richard said slowly. "I must be there for a month at least. But I'm disappointed, too. I got thinking of it, the night—I couldn't sleep! I'm disappointed, too."

He fell silent. "I wish," he said hesitatingly, "that you had not told me that you—you don't feel that you—are going to love me!" he said. "I love you with all my heart and soul. It—well, it's all I think of now. I want—"

He turned and picking an ivy leaf from the wall looked at it intently for a moment and tore it apart before he let it fall. "However," he said philosophically, smiling at her, "we'll let that wait!"

Harriet, close to him, laid one hand upon his shoulder.

"You misunderstood me," she said, "What I said was that I could not love you more than I do!"

"Oh, Brazil—Brazil—Brazil!" the youth said, disgustedly. "I hate the sound of it!"

"These clothes are for the ranch," Nina said, smiling. Both her father and Harriet augured well from the youth's instantly transformed face.

"Say—honestly?" he asked, ineffectually, with an irrepressible grin.

"I think so," Nina murmured. The rest of their conversation was inaudible; they presently wandered forth to finish it on the tennis court. Ward followed his grandmother upstairs, and Harriet and Richard were left to finish their breakfast alone.

"You look tired," Harriet said, rising, when his omelette came in, and pausing beside the head of the table for an instant on her way to the pantry.

"I had a bad night," Richard admitted. "But that's not all you're going to have for breakfast?" he protested.

"I never have 'more,'" Harriet smiled. "I'm sorry about the bad night," said she.

"I couldn't help thinking—" Richard began. "What is it, Mollie?" he added, harshly, to the hovering maid.

"Nothing—no matter—sir," Mollie stammered, retreating. "It was just that the man about the sheep came sir—" she faltered.

"The sheep!" Richard echoed, frowning. Harriet laughed gayly.

"Oh, yes!" she said. "I told you I had ordered two or three young sheep," she explained, "to keep our lawns cropped. They look so adorable, and they do it so nicely! Has he got them, Mollie?" she added, eagerly.

"Oh, I must see them! I'll be back in exactly five minutes, Mr. Carter," she said.

"What are we supposed to do with them in winter?" Richard asked, smiling.

"Oh, they will have a little—little byre," she answered, readily. "You'll—you'll like them!" And he heard her joyous voice following Mollie away.

Richard pushed back his plate and looked irresolutely after her. Then suddenly he rose and walked through the pantry, asking two startled maids for Mrs. Carter. Mollie had been several years in the house without ever seeing "him" in this neighborhood before.

Richard crossed a sunshiny brick-walled yard, where linen was drying, and went through a brick gateway that gave on a neglected little lane. The lane had once been the driveway for a carriage and a prancing pair, but there were only riding horses at Crownlands now, and three of these were locking over the wall at the grass-grown road. And Richard found Harriet here.

She was on her knees, in the pleasant green shadow of the old sycamores and maples; her back was toward him. She was looking up into the face of the old stableman, Trotter, who stood before her, his crooked, dwarfed old figure still further bent, as he held two strong young ewes by their thick, woolly shoulders.

As Trotter gave him a respectful good morning, Harriet sprang to her feet and whirled about to Richard. She saw the wooden stiff legs of a very young lamb dangling from her arms and the lamb's meek little black-rubbed face close to the beautiful face he loved.

"Oh, Richard!" she said, carried away by her own delight. "Look at it! Isn't it the sweetest darling lamb that ever was! Oh, you sweet!" she said, putting her lips to the little woolly head.

"You are!" Richard said quite without premeditation.

Harriet laughed, surrendered the little lamb to Trotter and followed the old man's departure to the stables with an anxious warning.

"They're to have this little enclosure all to themselves," she explained to Richard when they were alone. "He's going to build them a little shed." And as Richard, his back leaning against the low brick wall, made no immediate attempt to move, she looked at him expectantly. "Shall we go back?" she suggested.

"That sounded very pleasant to me," Richard said with deliberate irreverence.

Harriet looked at him in puzzled silence.

"I mean your calling me Richard," he said.

She flushed brightly and laughed.

"Did I? I always think of you as Richard!" she explained.

"So you abandon me on the Brazil trip?" he asked, watching her seriously.

Richard looked at her in puzzled silence.
